Opportunities

- Participation: this fund is an efficient way to participate in the development of the gold price.
- Cost-effective management: as a passively managed fund, there is no need for a costly analysis to emulate the international gold markets.
- Currency hedge can be selected: choose between a share class with or without hedging the possible exchange rate risks vis-à-vis the Swiss franc.
- Transparency: the ETF invests in traceable gold bars. The origin of the gold in these bars is known and can be clearly identified thanks to a segregated production process at the refinery.
- Gold bars available: as the fund physically deposits its gold investments, you can exchange your fund units at equivalent value for 1-kilogram gold bars as desired.
- Investor protection: the fund is subject to the Federal Act on Collective Investment Schemes and the invested capital is regarded as a special asset; this protects you as an investor.

Risks

- Fluctuations in value: the fund value is directly influenced by the gold price, which can be subject to strong fluctuations. Political and economic uncertainties in producing countries, legal changes, trade restrictions and international sanctions can have a negative impact on the price of gold. As the fund is passively managed, such losses in value cannot be actively cushioned.
- Physical deposit: the gold is physically deposited at the custodian bank or with third-party custodians. As gold does not generate any current income, the ongoing costs are paid directly from the fund assets, reducing the amount of gold per unit over time.
- Unit value: the fund unit value may fall below the purchase price at which you purchased your unit.
