Haute Capital Partners invests in Aisot Technologies, a leader in AI-based investment optimization

For immediate release

Biel/Bienne, Switzerland - Haute Capital Partners, a Swiss investment company listed on the BX Swiss stock exchange, has announced today that it has invested in Aisot Technologies, a company specializing in AI-based investment optimization. Haute Capital Partners has acquired approximately 10% stake in the company, which will be completed in stages throughout 2023, with an option to increase this stake to approximately 20% based on measurable collaboration results.

Aisot Technologies AG, based in Zurich, is a fast-growing company that has developed an AI-based investment optimization platform. The platform uses sophisticated algorithms to analyze market, alternative data and assist qualified investors in making more informed investment decisions.

"We are excited to partner with Haute Capital Partners. The company's leadership recognized the huge role AI will play in the future of asset and wealth management. We are convinced that Haute Capital Partners brings further substantial growth potential to Aisot Technologies," said the CEO of Aisot Technologies.

Haute Capital Partners believes that Aisot Technologies' expertise in AI and machine learning is essential for investors in an ever-changing economic environment. By investing in the company, Haute Capital Partners believes it is well-positioned to benefit from the growth of the investment industry.

"We are delighted to invest in Aisot Technologies and support the expansion of this innovative company," said Thibault Leroy Bürki, CEO of Haute Capital Partners. "Aisot Technologies' expertise in AI and machine learning is remarkable, and we are confident that this will greatly benefit our investors."

This acquisition strengthens Haute Capital Partners' position as a leading investor in innovative companies that use the latest technologies to meet the needs of investors.
